Volume 6, Issue 3

September 2015

Dear Friends:

Each year the United States honors the contributions that Latinos have made to our great country with Hispanic Heritage Month, which runs from September 15 till October 15.

The annual, month long celebration began 26 years ago. Congress had first passed a resolution to celebrate Hispanic Heritage at the national level, as a week long event on September 17, 1968. Nearly 20 years later, on August 17, 1988, President Ronald Reagan expanded the celebration to a month.

Celebrating Hispanic Heritage Month gives us an opportunity to reflect on what makes Latinos such a strong, contributing force in America.

Latinos have had a profound and positive influence on our country through their commitment to family, faith, hard work and service. They have enhanced and shaped our national character with centuries old traditions that reflect the multiethnic and multi-cultural customs of their community.

With over 50 million Latinos across the United States, Latinos now make up the largest minority group and represent billions in buying power. Latinos also represent the fastest growing segment of the American electorate.

In Arizona, Raul Castro served as our first Latino Governor in the 1970's. In 1991, Ed Pastor was the first Latino elected to represent Arizona in the U.S. Congress. Today there are two Latinos in Congress representing Arizona: Raul Grijalva and Ruben Gallego.

In Tucson and Pima County, Latinos have sent a strong message by turning out to vote and leading the state in the number of Latinos that have been elected to governing bodies such as the state legislature, Pima County government, the Tucson City Council, Pima Community College governing board and local school districts.

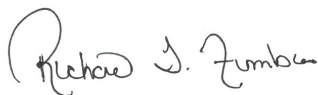

In a recent article in "Inside Tucson Business," entitled "Hispanics a Key to Tucson's Rebound," it discussed the importance of buying power of the Latino Community in Tucson, Pima County and throughout Arizona. It noted, "the Latino impact on the local and national economy and that the purchasing power represents $8 billion per year in

Ward 5 News

Pima County, a number that is expected to increase by 88% in the next decade.” By 2024, Latinos are estimated to spend $14 billion in the Tucson economy, equating to 28 percent of the total market spending.

As we reflected on the Latino contributions in this great country, let us not lose sight of where we, as Americans, Arizonans, Tucsonans need to go. We must continue to work together to solve the challenges of today, so our community and our children have a better tomorrow.

Peace,

Richard G. Fimbres

Celebrate the Completion of Kino Parkway

The City of Tucson and the Regional Transportation Authority (RTA) are celebrating the completion of the Kino Parkway – 22nd Street Intersection Improvement Project on Friday, October 2, with a ceremony to mark the completion of the project.

The project has reconstructed one of the most congested intersections in Southern Arizona with the first grade-separated intersection constructed by the City of Tucson. Dynamic lighting, public art, landscape design, bridge architecture and structural engineering create an impressive gateway from Tucson International Airport into the city as well as a smooth passage south to the University of Arizona’s Tech Park at The Bridges on the southwest corner of Kino and East 36th Street. The cost of the project was $20.6 million.

This road project continues the renaissance of Ward 5 and the South side. This work highlights the development of the area, with businesses such as Costco, Cinemark 14 Theater, El Rio Community Health Center, Curacao, VXi Tucson, CAID Industries, Shared Services, FedEx Ground and HomeGoods, expanding their businesses or opening their doors in Ward 5.

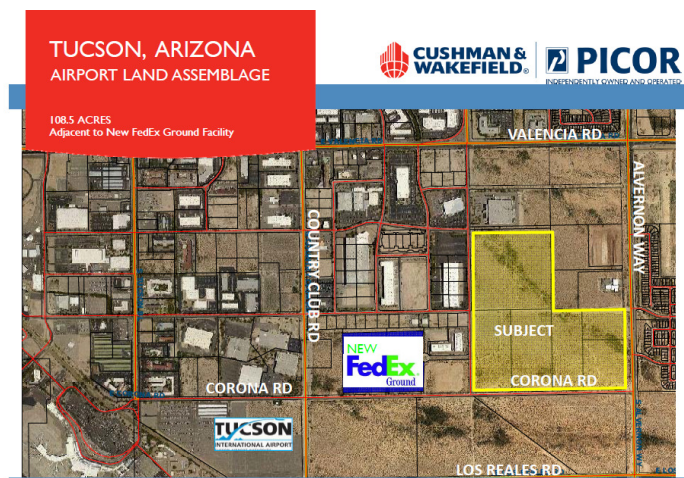

The elevated parkway includes bike lanes, six-foot-wide sidewalks and a landscaped median separating two traffic lanes in each direction. Beneath it, 22nd Street was widened to three lanes in each direction with exclusive right turn lanes and dual left-turn lanes to access on ramps. This will be a gateway to the Bridges, the University of Arizona BioTech Park and the City of Tucson downtown. It is another key piece of the renaissance of the South side of Tucson.

Ward 5 News

The Ashton Company was the contractor. A Citizen Advisory Committee of more than a dozen representatives of surrounding neighborhoods, local businesses, property owners and the Tucson Urban League met 25 times to provide valuable input, as well as holding five public open houses and seven neighborhood association meetings. Thanks to the exhaustive work of the Citizens Advisory Committee, a great concept was turned into a reality. Thanks to their due diligence and the work of Ashton Construction, who is located in Ward 5, our City has a great work for motorists, bicyclists and people walking, to use now.

HomeGoods Distribution Center and FedEx Ground Hub Update

Construction has begun for both the HomeGoods Distribution Center and for the FedEx Ground Hub, both located in Ward 5. FedEx Ground is in the midst of the $12.4 million dollar construction project building their new hub at 7050 S. Palo Verde. FedEx Ground's Hub will expand their workforce from 40 to 200 with the completion of their new facility. HomeGoods is in the process of the $75 million dollar project to build their new Distribution Center at 3649 E. Corona Road, which will distribute HomeGoods products to their stores across the Western United States. HomeGoods will initially hire 400 people and when the Distribution Center is at capacity, 910 people will be employed on the 100 acre site. Both projects are scheduled to be completed in 2016.

Los Reales Landfill New Public Entry Dedication

Cherrybell Update

Arizona Senator Jeff Flake sent a formal letter to Postmaster General Megan Brennan requesting the data and methodology to select Cherrybell for closure and what the Postal Service has done to determine the impacts of a potential closure of the Cherrybell Postal Office and Processing/Distribution Center. Congressman Raul Grijalva and Congressman Ruben Gallego introduced the "The Defending Quality Postal Delivery for the Future Act." The bill prohibits USPS from closing or consolidating any post office or other postal facility that is located in a ZIP code that has a high rate of population growth. Presently the Postmaster General is reviewing the criteria used to determine the proposed closure of processing centers. Tucson's Processing Center, Cherrybell has been moved from the closure list to the "To Be Determined List." Eight members of Arizona's Congressional delegation, U.S. Representatives Martha McSally, Raul Grijalva, Trent Franks, Ruben Gallego, Paul Gosar, Kyrsten Sinema, Matt Salmon and Ann Kirkpatrick, four Democrats and four Republicans, are hard at work to keep our processing center open.

Tucson's Traffic Safety Camera Program

In 2007, Tucson's Mayor and Council approved a program to help cut down the number of auto accidents, injuries and fatalities at the City's eight most dangerous intersections.

This program had photo cameras placed at these intersections to deal with speed and running red lights. The Mayor and Council received updates on the program, which showed a reduction of accidents, injuries and fatalities. In July, I had requested that the Mayor and Council receive a report on this program. When I served as the Director of the Governor's Office of Highway Safety, from 2002 to 2009, Arizona was one of the top five states in auto fatalities and injuries.

Through the work of GOHS, public service messaging and photo cameras and photo radar, the number of fatalities was reduced by 18%. This program is not about generating revenue, but saving lives and preventing injuries. At the September 9 Council meeting, Tucson Police Chief Roberto Villasenor gave the Mayor and Council an update on this program and what it has done at these intersections.

Chief Villasenor told the Mayor and Council since the first cameras went up in 2006, accidents at those spots have dropped 70 percent. The study looked at the average number of tickets a human officer writes: 162 per year. The chief says, based on that, with TPD short of officers, automated enforcement is like adding officers to the force.

"To equal the number of citations issued by the camera it would require 163 additional officers to equal that number and even that is only issuing citations for 33 percent of the time the camera flashes," Chief Villasenor said at the Council meeting.

Tucson Police looked at places that took down their cameras. Chief Villasenor said the stats showed violations and auto accidents went up when the cameras came down.

Chief Villasenor says collisions at eight intersections monitored by red light cameras decreased by 70 percent since the cameras were installed in 2007, falling from 188 crashes in Fiscal Year 2006 to 57 in Fiscal Year 2015. Commissioned police officers review each photo violation to validate the event and compare the photo of the driver with the Motor Vehicle Division's (MVD) photo of the registered owner of the vehicle. A citizens' initiative will appear on the November ballot that aims to get rid of the red light cameras.

City Council Assigns Greyhound Lease to Rio Nuevo

The Mayor and Tucson City Council approved an agreement with Rio Nuevo that will pave the way for a downtown hotel project by relocating the Greyhound station to an as-yet-unknown site. The agreement lets Rio Nuevo take over as landlord of the temporary Greyhound bus station, which currently sits on the site of the proposed hotel development. The agreement expedites the relocation of the station, allows Rio Nuevo to close on the sale of its part of the site to developer Nor-Generations, and allows the developer to move more quickly on construction. Nor-Generations plans to develop an 8.5-acre site along Granada Avenue, east of Interstate 10 and north of Cushing Street. The roughly $100 million project would include a hotel, apartment complex, retail shops, and museums. The developer also plans to build a 120,000-square-foot exhibition hall on property it owns next to the hotel site.

We Know That Parks Matter to You. Tell Them Why!

The Tucson Parks and Recreation Department has been gathering information for an exciting new five-year master plan. Now the department wants to hear about the types of programs, facilities and services that matter most to you. A series of community-wide open houses were scheduled in every ward that allowed people to communicate what you appreciate about city parks and what programs and services you would like to see added. Your input will help prioritize goals for the next five years.

Additional opportunities for input are available through the project website www.tucsonaz.gov/parks/masterplan or email parksmasterplan@tucsonaz.gov.

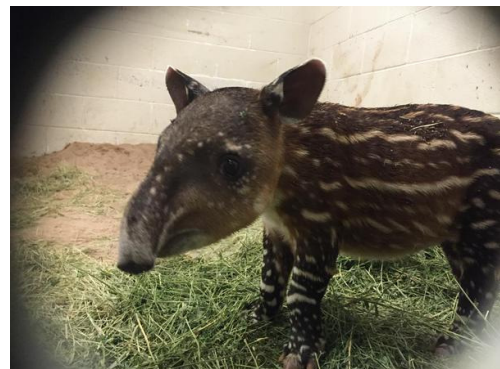

Tucson Earns National Accreditation for Parks and Recreation

The City of Tucson Parks and Recreation department was recognized again for excellence in the field of parks and recreation management by achieving national accreditation from the Commission for Accreditation of Park and Recreation Agencies (CAPRA). The department originally was accredited by CAPRA in October 2010. As a requirement of agency accreditation, Parks and Recreation must go through a review process every five years. Accreditation by CAPRA is a measure of an agency's overall quality of operation, management, and service to the community. The distinction indicates that an agency has met rigorous standards related to the management and administration of lands, facilities, resources, programs, safety and services. "I want to congratulate the entire staff for their commitment and dedication in achieving this much deserved recognition," said Parks and Recreation Director Fred Gray. "Attaining national re-accreditation is confirmation of their continued efforts to provide quality facilities, programs, and services throughout the community."

Halloween Safety Tips

Walk Safely - Cross the street at corners, using traffic signals and crosswalks. Look left, right and left again when crossing and keep looking as you cross. Put electronic devices down and keep heads up and walk, don't run, across the street. Teach children to make eye contact with drivers before crossing in front of them. Always walk on sidewalks or paths. If there are no sidewalks, walk facing traffic as far to the left as possible. Children should walk on direct routes with the fewest street crossings. Watch for cars that are turning or backing up. Teach children to never dart out into the street or cross between parked cars.

Trick or Treat With an Adult - Children under the age of 12 should not be alone at night without adult supervision. If kids are mature enough to be out without supervision, they should stick to familiar areas that are well lit and trick-or-treat in groups.

Keep Costumes Both Creative and Safe - Decorate costumes and bags with reflective tape or stickers and, if possible, choose light colors. Choose face paint and makeup whenever possible instead of masks, which can obstruct a child's vision. Have kids carry glow sticks or flashlights to help them see and be seen by drivers. When selecting a costume, make sure it is the right size to prevent trips and falls.

Drive Extra Safely on Halloween - Slow down and be especially alert in residential neighborhoods. Children are excited on Halloween and may move in unpredictable ways. Take extra time to look for kids at intersections, on medians and on curbs. Enter and exit driveways and alleys slowly and carefully. Eliminate any distractions inside your car so you can concentrate on the road and your surroundings. Drive slowly, anticipate heavy pedestrian traffic and turn your headlights on earlier in the day to spot children from greater distances. Popular trick-or-treating hours are 5:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. so be especially alert for kids during those hours.
